Cigarette tax, local partners expand access to West Sac preschools

From Art Schroeder
City of West Sacramento

A West Sacramento education program has received more than $4 million in funding from First 5 Yolo and First 5 California during the past eight years. The program, "Up 4 West Sacramento" (UP 4 WS), operates as a collaborative venture between First 5 Yolo and First 5 California, along with the Washington Unified School District, the Yolo County Office of Education, the City of West Sacramento, and local childcare centers.

The City's interest in early education was initially fostered in 2003 when Mayor Christopher Cabaldon appointed then-Council Member Carolyn Pierson to head a task force on universal preschool. First 5 Yolo Commissioners and staff served on that Task Force, which assisted First 5 Yolo in its first application to First 5 California. The project eventually led to the formation of UP 4 WS. The UP 4 WS program has an executive Board, chaired by Council Member Oscar Villegas with representatives from First 5 Yolo, the Yolo County Office of Education, Washington

30 pounds of marijuana at I-5 rest stop

Yolo County sheriff's deputies arrested two out-of-town men found with a large amount of marijuana.

Sheriff's spokesman Mark Persons reports a deputy contacted the pair while they were parked in the southbound lot at an I-5 rest stop in the north-Yolo town of Dunnigan.

"During contact, the deputy detected a strong odor of marijuana coming from the interior and rear bed of the vehicle," reported Persons. "A search of the vehicle revealed several large duffle bags containing 30 one-pound bags of individually packaged marijuana, and 21 non-prescribed Vicodin tablets."

Arrested were 22-year old Eric Martin Scott of San Jose and 26-year old Adam Gabriel Barrett of Lancaster. They were charged with possession of marijuana and offering to sell or furnish the drug. Scott was also charged with possession of a controlled substance.

They were jailed before being released on $50,000 bail, and will be arraigned Nov. 27.

What to do with a courthouse:

Yolo County looking for ideas on reuse of 1917 landmark building

Built with classical design influences, Yolo's old courthouse building will soon be re-purposed. Exactly how it will be used next remains to be seen.

News-Ledger Staff

What would you do with this landmark courthouse building erected in 1917? Would you convert it to office space? A museum? A school? Some sort of public market?

Now that Yolo County is constructing a replacement court, the old structure in Woodland will lose its original purpose. So county officials are looking to "consider alternative and innovative approaches to the reuse of the facility," reports spokesperson Beth Gabor.

So, just what will you have to work with?

You get a building on the National Registry of Historic Places that was designed with Greek and Roman influences, encompasses 50,000 square feet and sits on 2.75 acres along Court Street, a block away from Woodland's main drag.

"Yolo County's objective is to consider this property in its suburban context as a fully utilized and valued asset that invites innovative design," said Gabor. "Potential use could involve a lease of the property from the county. Any future use would need to take into account historic preservation restrictions and environmental conditions."

Gabor quotes Mindi Nunez, deputy county administrator:

"We intend to use the ideas received from citizens, developers and others for planning purposes to make strategic decisions regarding future use of this property."

Interested parties can arrange a tour by calling (530) 666-8426.

Ideas may be submitted by email (mindi.nunes@yolocounty.org) or mail (Office of the Yolo County Administrator, Attn: Mindi Nunes, 625 Court St., Suite 202, Woodland CA 95695).

For more information on submitting ideas, visit www.yolocounty.org.

Ideas are due by November 25.

Special Yolo DUI unit will continue

The state's Office of Traffic Safety will continue to fund a special DUI enforcement unit in Yolo County, reports the Yolo District Attorney's office.

The state has awarded Yolo $233,295 for the prosecution of "driving under the influence" cases, said a press statement from Chief Deputy D.A. Jonathan Raven.

"As a result of the (Office of Traffic Safety) funding, a highly trained staff can focus attention and resources on repeat offenders and drivers who cause collisions where there is an injury or fatality," said Raven. "The grant will continue to fund the District Attorney's Vertical Prosecution Unit, allowing one prosecutor to handle a case through all stages of the criminal process, from the time of arrest through sentencing. The funding also allows the team to assist law enforcement in the investigation of fatal and major injury collisions."

The office prosecutes "thousands" of DUI cases annually, said Raven. Most of those are alcohol-related, but prosecutors are seeing more cases of drivers under the influence of marijuana, prescription drugs, methamphetamine or a combination of alcohol and drugs.

The Yolo prosecution team includes Deputy D.A. Matt De Moura, investigator John Shugart (a retired CHP sergeant) and legal secretary Lori Castaneda. Last month, the team

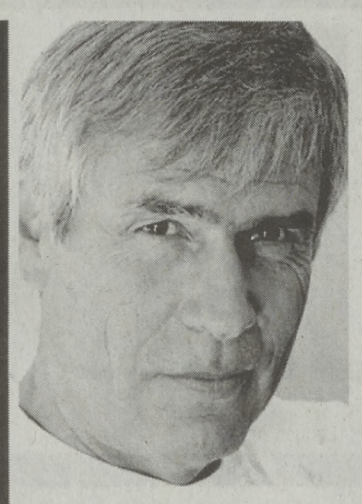
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Apparently, a big ego, long nose hairs or any 'visible signs of fungi' can all doom a first date.

Who knew?

I was talking to a friend the other day and somehow our conversation turned to the subject of how most men usually make a very poor impression on first dates, and our chat went a little something like this:

"Ever since I got divorced, my match-making big sister has been trying to get me to go out on dates," explained my friend. "For years now, I've been able to get out of it, but she just never stops trying. I know she means well and wants to be helpful, but I have told her over and over again that my dogs and I are perfectly happy to have our home all to ourselves now and that I have no urge to have a man underfoot 24/7 again. Anyway, a few weeks ago, I couldn't stand her pleading any longer and I very reluctantly agreed to let her set up a date for me with one of the guys she thinks will make me happy as a clam. So she gives him my phone number and he calls up and asks if I would like to go to dinner with him. Now no way do I want to go on a dinner date, since that would be at night and who knows what is expected of women nowadays after the sun goes down. So I tell him I can only meet him for lunch since I don't have anyone who can watch my dogs at night. I know that was a pretty lame excuse, but he seemed to buy it and I told him I would leave all the lunch date details up to him. So guess what he goes and does?"

"What?"

"He picks out the fanciest place in town to have lunch, which means I have to dig through my entire closet to come up with something appropriate to wear, which turned out to include my new boots, and that turned into a whole other can of worms that I will explain later. So, feeling like I wanted to throw up, I show up at the fancy restaurant determined to have a nice lunch and there he is, smiling from ear-to-ear and actually not looking as bad as I thought he would. I mean, my sister's taste in men is what you might generously call eclectic, and for some reason, most of them are bald. But this guy at least had some hair and it was even properly combed."

"So, it sounds like your lunch date was off to a good start," I said.

"It was, but things started to go downhill in a real big hurry!"

"How come?"

"Well, to begin with, he was short, about 5'7" tops, and there I was in high-heeled boots, making me as tall as him. As shallow as it sounds, I just don't like short men. Never have, never will. Plus that Napoleon complex thing really is true by the way! So my goal was to get seated as quickly as possible so I could stop thinking about how short he was. And I did like that he pulled out my chair for me. But it was only a matter of seconds before the real problem started."

"What was the real problem?" I asked with interest.

"He started talking!"

"Did he have a weird voice or something?"

"No, his voice was pretty normal, although nothing to write home about. But all he wanted to talk about was himself! And once he got started, boy, he simply couldn't stop!"

"Maybe he was just nervous?"

"No, he didn't seem nervous at all. He was just full of himself, and I'm talking right up to the brim, too! He's a lawyer, and he's apparently under the illusion that it's the greatest profession in the world. And there I was, having always ranked lawyers right up there with car salesmen and carnival barkers. And the more he talked, the more I wanted to scream, `Okay, please, enough already'! Plus since he wouldn't let me get a word in edgewise, I had way too much time to start noticing all the other things I didn't like about him."

"Like what?"

"Well, to begin with, he was wearing a pinky ring."

"A pinky ring?"

"I have always tried to avoid guys who wear pinky rings, and this one was huge. I mean, I love amethyst stones, but not when they're big enough to play catch with and on a guy's pinky finger. Plus he had obviously just had a manicure."

"Really?"

"I'm sorry, but a man whose fingernails look better than mine has always been a huge red flag for me, not to mention that god-awful pinky ring!"

"Wow," I said, "I didn't realize women are so observant on first dates."

"Are you kidding? We notice everything! And to tell you the truth, it's really not all that hard to impress us. There are just a few basic things that we don't want to see."

"Like what?"

"Well, for instance, a belly that needs the word `beer' in front of it, or eyebrows that look like mustaches, or any visible signs of fungi. We also don't want to see hair in strange places! I mean, we women have all learned that we have to accept how hairy most men are, and some of us even come to like it, but we want guys to be hairy in all the places that we have more or less learned to live with – no surprises. In other words, we don't want to see hair coming out of a guy's nose, or his ears, or especially a mole on his face."

"So did your lunch date have hair in any of the wrong places?"

"No, but he did do something I have a very big problem with – he made noise when he chewed his food. I mean, he tried to chew with his mouth shut, which is always a good thing, but he still made lots of gross shushing sounds. Plus since he couldn't stop talking about himself, the food he was chewing kept coming into view. Now who wants to watch – and hear – your date chewing his food?"

"So, how did the date end?" I asked with interest.

"Oh, in the worst possible way!"

"What do you mean?"

"It ended up with him going on and on about how he had a really fantastic time, which I'm sure he did since he got to talk non-stop about himself for over an hour. But now he wants to take me out again and I'm running out of excuses. I really want to strangle my sister and she knows it. Plus now he wants us to have a night-time date, and you know what that means, don't you?"

"No, what?"

"It means that he wants to get those perfectly manicured and creepy little hands of his on me, and believe me, the only paws I want on me nowadays belong to my dogs!"

Note: After showing the draft of this column to a few more friends, it dawned on me that West Sacramento is full of people who have been on some very funny dates, and that it would make a great subject for a follow-up column. So if you are one of them, I can be reached at daryl@news-ledger.com and I promise to keep your name – although not your funny date story – a secret!

Unified School District and a member of the public.

Funding increased over the first seven years of the program as more children were served each year, and reached its current stable and consistent level in 2010. The "First 5" organizations are funded by a voter-approved tax on tobacco products. The funds are used to support early-childhood programs in California.

UP4WS in West Sacramento now serves about 600 children age zero-to-five, annually.

Funding from the First Five California grant not only provides access to quality preschool and childcare in West Sacramento, but also provides money for training and facilities improvement, and pays for additional staff to support teachers and families. Nine early education employees were hired by the City and its partners using funds from the grant. Additional early learning positions have received funding throughout the city.

Over 3,600 children have benefitted from the funding, which has provided thousands of free or low cost preschool opportunities to families, greatly improved the education and skill of West Sacramento's Early Education workforce, helped link families to needed resources, and has improved the school readiness level of young people entering kindergarten. Research shows that academic skills like numeracy and early literacy skills are critical to school success, but what may be even more important is a child's ability to problem solve, get along with others, follow directions, and regulate the child's emotions. Preschool and childcare teachers focus specifically on these abilities, and children who attend high quality preschool show a much higher level of school readiness due to these social-emotional skills.

Since this program began, all West Sacramento elementary schools have improved performance scores and now many are in the higher or highest performance index. UP4WS feels that increasing school readiness levels for West Sacramento children helps explain the success in performance scores.

In November, First 5 Yolo celebrates its fifteen-year anniversary of providing funding to improve the lives of all zero-to-five year olds in the county.

Carol Richardson, West Sacramento's Assistant City Manager, helped bring this collaborative to West Sacramento in 2003.

"First 5 Yolo has been a wonderful partner with West Sacramento these last 15 years," said Richardson in a press release. "Specifically, the assistance they have brought in the early learning arena has increased accessibility and the quality of preschools in West Sacramento. Children will benefit for years to come from these programs."

For more information about West Sacramento's early learning programs, contact Justine Jimenez, Director of Early Learning Services, (916) 617-4549.

After getting the door open, reported an officer, police issued "numerous K9 warnings over the patrol car P.A. for the subject to come out. . . With no response from anyone inside, we entered and searched the building. I located (a 30-year old homeless man) hiding under some equipment inside a large wooden crate."

A Torino Road or Court man told police that he had parked his vehicle near Village Parkway and Stonegate overnight:

"When driving his vehicle this morning, he smelled an unusual amount of gasoline in and around the vehicle and noticed his fuel level was surprisingly low. After attempting to get fuel, (he) noticed a large amount of gasoline on the ground under his vehicle. Upon further investigation, (he) observed that the fuel line on his vehicle was missing. . . He said he had no idea who did this, and last night being Halloween, there were a lot of kids out and about."

Nov. 1, 3:16 p.m.

Near Westacre and West Capitol, a 27-year old Yuba City man was contacted by police for riding a bike on the sidewalk. The officer reported that the man appeared to be reaching for something in a pocket as the officer approached:

"He appeared to be trying to destroy something with his hand," reported the officer.

After being detained, the man "made a spontaneous statement that he had 'resin' and crumbled it up into the bush."

The officer did not find the suspected marijuana resin, but the man went to jail.

Nov. 1, 5:43 p.m.

A police officer contacted a 22-year old homeless man near Westacre Road and West Capitol Avenue.

The man provided his name and said he was on probation.

A probation search turned up a "small baggie with a white crystal-like substance."

The man admitted it was "meth" and was arrested.

Also contacted at the scene was a 20-year old homeless woman, who was found to have a felony warrant. She admitted having "about one gram of meth." A baggie with the drug was found in her purse. She, too, went to jail.

Nov. 1, 10:13 p.m.

From a 6th Street market:

"Two males forcefully stole two bottles of beer."

Nov. 2, 6 p.m.

A man was jailed for public intoxication after being contacted on the 900-block of West Capitol. At his request, his biked was booked for safekeeping at the police department.

Nov. 2, 11:17 p.m.

A 33-year old man from Sacramento Avenue was cited and released after being caught shoplifting at a Riverpoint Court store. The merchandise was recovered.

Nov. 3, 12:47 p.m.

A Sacramento man came to the police department lobby to report a problem. He had parked an RV at a West Capitol Avenue storage facility for many months. As of a month ago, there was no problem. But:

"When I arrived today, I noticed the two flat-panel televisions had been stolen from inside the RV." They were worth $500-$1,000 each.

Nov. 3, 5:30 p.m.

From a store on Riverpoint Court:

A 55-year old Sacramento man "went into (the) business with an old receipt, selected items from the receipt, and attempted to return them." He was arrested for "burglary larceny shoplifting."

Nov. 3, 7:26 p.m.

An officer contacted a 33-year old transient biking with no light at Maple Street and Michigan Boulevard. He turned out to be a wanted parolee, and was arrested.

Would you care to become the advocate for a child in the foster care system?

Yolo County CASA is seeking volunteers to go through training and serve that function. Training is scheduled from Jan. 13 to Feb. 6. For more information, attend one of the orientation sessions on any Thursday at noon or the last Tuesday of the month at 6 p.m., at 724 Main St., Suite 102 in Woodland. Kids' theater

Fairytale Theater comes to the Black Box Theater in the West Sacramento Community Center (1075 West Capitol Avenue) through the holidays.

Watch "Holka Polka" and journey through a land where witches, wizards and royalty come together to find out who cast the sleeping spell on the prince. Saturdays at noon, Nov. 2 & 16, Dec. 7 & 21, and Jan. 11.

View "Peggy the Pint-Size Pirate" and see if the pirates can keep Peggy from becoming one of them because she's too small, and see how she fairs against the evil sea monster. Saturdays at noon on Nov. 9, Dec. 14, Jan. 4 & 18.

Tickets are $5 from www.westsacfun.org. or from the community center in advance. Tickets will be available at the door if they're still available.

Mental health services

Yolo County is conducting a survey on mental health needs to help decide how to spend funding on mental health programs. One proposal calls for a 12-unit housing unit, with services, in Woodland. Those who are consumers of such services, county employees, service providers, or other "stakeholders" are invited to take the online survey. Visit: http://tinyurl.com/Yolo-MHSA-CPP-Survey.

Couch Theater DVD Previews

Scene from 'The World's End'

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Planes" (PG) -- This animated spin-off of Pixar's "Cars" follows Dusty Crophopper (voiced by Dane Cook), a talking airplane who's afraid of heights. Despite his fears, Dusty is determined to win an around-the-world airplane race -- pitting him against the fastest and most advanced planes in the world. True to the formula played out by "Cars 2" and "Turbo," our hero will meet many other talking planes with silly personalities that border on racial stereotypes.

It's no surprise that this originally was planned as a straight-to-video venture. The best jokes will go right over the kids' heads -- and aren't entertaining enough for most grownups. The kids probably will have more fun playing with the toys than watching the movie.

"We're the Millers" (R) -- David (Jason Sudeikis) is a mid-30s slacker -- a no-ambition, small-time pot dealer who sells to all types except children. When he gets mugged of his money and merchandise, David has to pay off his debt by bringing the next shipment up from Mexico. He recruits a pretend family to help him get through the border without suspicion -- the stripper-next-door (Jennifer Aniston), a hopeless dork (Will Poulter) and an aggressive runaway teen (Emma Roberts) fill the roles of his fake suburban wife and kids.

For a raunchy, over-the-line comedy, the film is surprisingly quick-witted and enjoyable. A few scenes might make you squirm (a tarantula bites an unfortunate area), but all in all, the runtime is a funny, somewhat cynical take on the American Dream that seems so bizarre to so many.

"2 Guns" (R) -- Denzel Washington and Mark Wahlberg play two bank-robbing buddies hiding a secret from each other -- they're both crooked law-enforcement agents trying to entrap each other. Washington is a DEA agent, and Wahlberg is a naval intelligence officer. There's more to the plot than that; however, this is the type of movie where plot development is something that happens between explosive gun fights and bouts of banter. If you like your buddy action flicks a little bit tougher, a little bit louder with a lot more shooting, then you can enjoy this rental.

"The World's End" (R) -- A handful of thirtysomethings, lead by their delusional friend (Simon Pegg), try to finish a drinking challenge they took up as reckless teens. Then a science-fiction/action movie intrudes on their reflective comedy as alien imposters come flailing at the flabby old friends. It's the third movie in a line of barely related flicks starting with "Shaun of the Dead." The jokes come at you fast -- almost as rapidly as the movie's gears shift from funny, to touching, to action packed. Just when you think you know where it's all going, another surprise hits the screen like a projectile in an alien bar fight.

"Chasing Chaos: My Decade In and Out of Humanitarian Aid" by Jessica Alexander

(Broadway Books, $15)
Reviewed by Molly Ford

Most of us will live our whole lives without ever traveling to the countries Jessica Alexander takes us in her book "Chasing Chaos: My Decade In and Out of Humanitarian Aid." Sans passports, we readers willingly follow Jessica to places diverse and, to the outsider, often frightening: Rwanda, Indonesia, Sierra Leone, Haiti and more.

Much is written about humanitarian aid from a clinical perspective, but Alexander's firsthand account of delivering international aid is dramatic and gripping. Her memoir crosses war, political challenge, genocide and natural disaster, spanning multiple countries and years. Alexander also provides context to her account in order to help the reader better understand international aid. She succulently explains the complexity of the aid community without being dry or overtly academic.

As Alexander moves from a fresh-faced recent graduate to a respected member of the aid community, we see her manage deep challenges in balancing organizations' overall mission with her specific roles and personal feelings about the aid industry. Most fascinating is how daily life and national crises can blend together when doing overseas humanitarian work. Alexander's account of trying to go on a date with Pete, a "hot Australian" from the United Nations,

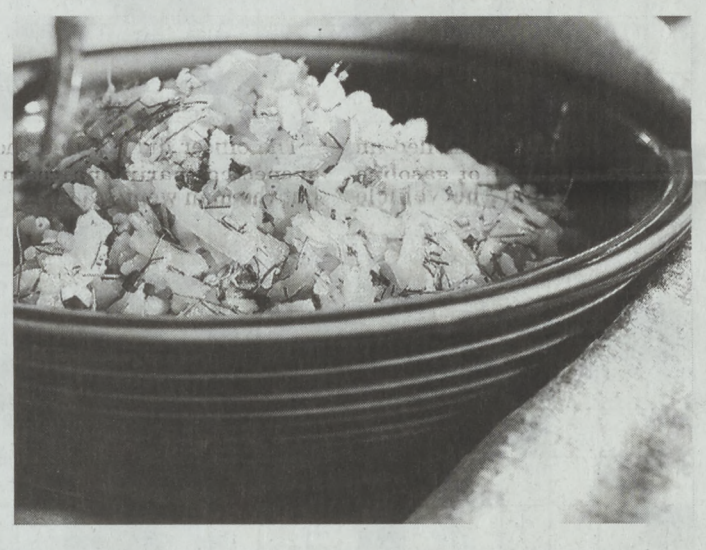
Holiday Side Dishes Play a Starring Role



Traditionally, the centerpiece of the Thanksgiving holiday table is the presentation and carving of the bird. While I enjoy the beautiful distribution of the crispy skin and white or dark meat, why can't the side dishes play a starring role, too?

If your family or invited guests are vegetarians, these sensational side dishes serve a dual purpose. They're tasty, unusual and hearty, and showcase the bounty of fall vegetables beautifully.

Here are the recipes for some creative dishes that you can enjoy all year long or serve as a holiday dish or as an entree for vegetarian guests.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH AND RICE PILAF

This is a variation of a traditional Greek rice pilaf dish that uses pumpkin and a short-grained, polished rice that's grown in the Macedonia region of northern Greece. It's often difficult to find in the U.S. My variation uses Butternut squash and instant brown rice to add color and nutrients to this festive fall pilaf.

2 pounds butternut squash, peeled, halved and seeded
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 large red onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 cup instant or parboiled brown rice
2 cups water, or 1 (14-ounce) can vegetable broth plus 1/2 cup water
1/2 cup chopped dill or basil
3 teaspoons chopped fresh oregano or 1 teaspoon dried oregano
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon

1. Grate the squash through the large holes of a box grater. Heat oil in a large cast-iron or nonstick skillet over medium-low heat. Add onion and garlic, and cook, stirring, until soft and lightly colored, 10 to 12 minutes. Combine 2 tablespoons water and tomato paste in a small bowl and stir it into the pan. Add rice and stir to coat. Add the squash, in batches if necessary, and stir until it has reduced in volume enough so that you can cover the pan.

2. Increase the heat to medium-high, pour in 2 cups water (or if using broth, 1 3/4 cups plus 1/4 cup water), cover and bring to a boil. Reduce the heat to medium-low and cook, covered, stirring once or twice, until the rice has absorbed most of the liquid and squash is tender, 25 to 30 minutes.

3. Add basil or parsley, oregano, salt, pepper and cinnamon; gently stir to combine. Remove from heat and let stand, covered, for 5 minutes. Serve hot or at room temperature. Makes 8 servings, about 3/4 cup each.

CUSTOM BAKED SWEET POTATOES

I've listed a variety of flavorful additions that you and your guests can stir-in or use as toppings for your sweet potatoes. Select sweet potatoes that are a uniform size so that they cook evenly. You can set up your stir-in/toppings in small bowls surrounding a tray of baked sweet potatoes. All the flavors work together if you like to pile it on, or any one can be used alone. You also can add chopped, cooked vegetables to the toppers list to turn the sweet potato into an entree for vegetarian guests.

8 to 12 medium-sized sweet potatoes
Stir-ins and/or Toppers (see below)

1. Preheat oven to 400 F.
2. Scrub the potatoes under water and dry them off. Spray or rub them with oil.
3. Use a metal fork to poke a few holes in each potato. (This keeps them from exploding when they cook. Don't do this too far ahead of baking or the fork holes will oxidize and turn dark.)
4. Put the potatoes on a rimmed baking sheet, and bake for 50-60 minutes, until soft.
5. To serve, cut potatoes length-wise across the top of each potato and squeeze the ends together to open the potato. Serve the potatoes with bowls of the stir-ins or toppers (see below). Makes 8 to 12 servings.

TIP: If you're baking sweet potatoes ahead of time for your holiday dinner, keep them warm in a cooler. Preheat the cooler with hot water beforehand; empty and dry it right before adding the hot potatoes. The baked potatoes will stay hot for up to 4 hours.

Stir-ins and/or Toppers:
PEANUT BUTTER: For creaminess, add 1/2 cup.
ORANGE PEEL: For tart flavor, add 2 tablespoons.
RED CURRY PASTE: Add Indian spice and heat with 2 to 4 teaspoons.
PUMPKIN OR APPLE PIE SPICE: For harvest flavor, add 4 teaspoons spice plus 1 teaspoon ground black pepper.

Toppers:
PEANUTS AND COCONUT: Impart Far-Eastern flair with shredded coconut and chopped peanuts.
BACON AND ROSEMARY: Add smoky depth with crumbled cooked bacon tossed with snipped fresh rosemary.
ONION AND GARLIC: For earthy flavor, top with sauteed thinly sliced onion and garlic.
ALMONDS: Give a salty crunch with chopped smoked almonds.
PINEAPPLE AND BLUE CHEESE: Top with 1 cup pineapple chunks and 1/2 cup blue cheese crumbles.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.
NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale.
